American Legion men, inaugurators and sponsors of the plan to establish a community chest for the relief of the community's needy, enter the last week of the drive encouraged by the fact that they are nearing the goal of $500 which they had set as a mark for Antioch's first united charities fund.

"Only $99 are needed to round out the $500 fund," Commander S. M. Wallace, committee chairman, declared today. "But we shall not stop there—half the community has been cov-

Many business and professional men have not been called upon and so have not had opportunity to contribute. The work has been somewhat retarded during the week owing to the fact that Wallace has been ill. His committee members have been busy with other things.

Permanent Committee Formed.

With the original drive for funds completed, the money thus raised, according to the plan announced, will be turned over to a committee consisting of members from the various community organizations. Permanent committee members from the Legion have been selected. They are Rev. Rex C. Simms, pastor of St. Ignace church, and Alonzo Runyard, The Legion Auxiliary will be represented on the permanent committee by Mrs. Clarence Shults and Mrs. William White. Mrs. H. J. Von has been named for the Altar and Rosary Society of St. Peter's church. Members to represent the Woman's Club, the Ladies' Aid, Ladies' Guild, and other organizations are to be selected soon, and next week organization of the permanent committee will be effected.

Big Show to Wind Up Drive.

As the grand finale to the united charities effort, the committee, with the cooperation of Manager Fred Swanson of the Antioch Theatre, has arranged to present "The Virtuous Sin," an unusual movie-talkie, at the Antioch Theatre Friday night, January 23. For this entertainment hundreds of tickets have been purchased by local people, thus assuring the success of the show.

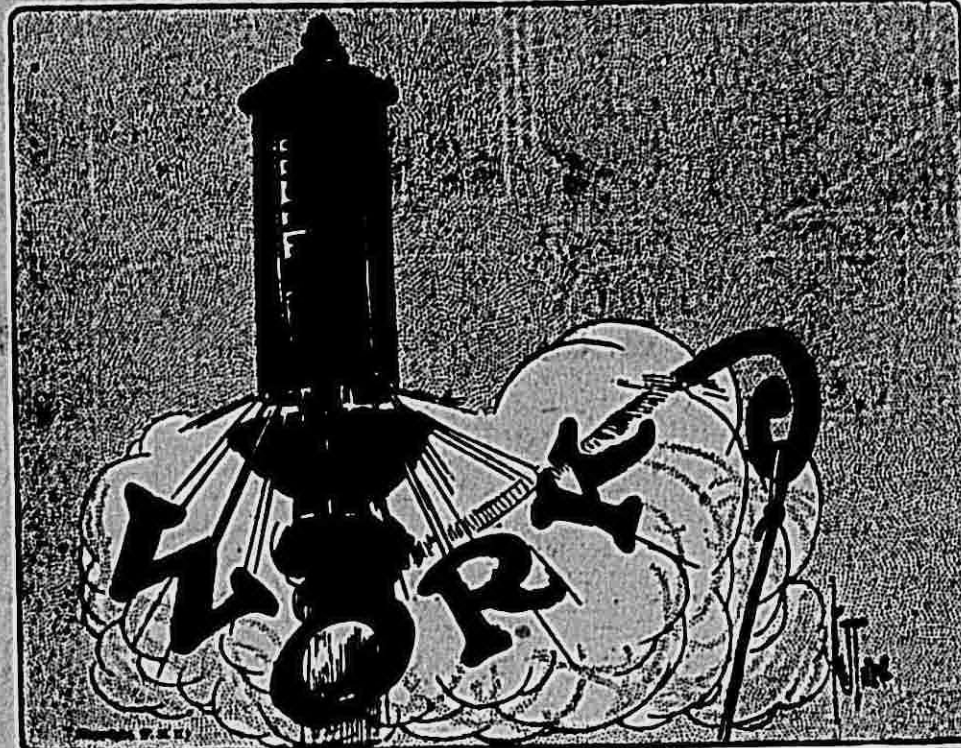

The least that Antioch people can do for the cause of charity is to spend 50 cents for a ticket to the show, the committee points out in extending an invitation to all.

Gus Schunk, who has been ill for several weeks, is now convalescing.

The Key to Normalcy

DAIRMEN APPROVE
ASSOCIATION STANDPres. McQueen Lauds Lake County Producers for Loyalty

Over 400 Lake county dairymen assembled at the annual meeting of District 7 of the Pure Milk Association at Ivanhoe Tuesday, asserted themselves squarely back of the management of the association.

On the nomination of Supervisor Harold D. Kelsey, of Cuba township, H. A. Pfister, of Prairie View, director and treasurer of the association, was unanimously re-elected director of district 7 for the ensuing year. Other district officers re-elected were Chas. W. Wray, of Grayslake, president; Whitney Rockenbach, of Wauconda, secretary; John Wirtz, of Mundelein, was elected vice-president, and William Chandler, treasurer.

Lake County is loyal.

The recent discussion at meetings at Lake Zurich and Grayslake was discussed, and it was flatly stated that the attitudes shown at these meetings were not at all a true expression of the sentiment of Lake county toward the association and its management; that the price reduction of 46 cents per hundred which passed 35 cents of the cut back to the farmer was unfortunate, but inevitable in the face of circumstances; and that the association had done all in its power to maintain the price, and without the fine work of this organization the price cut would undoubtedly have come much sooner, and have been much larger than it is. As a further proof of Lake county's loyalty to the mother organization, a resolution of apology for previous dissension was tendered, and a vote of confidence in the board of directors and management was unanimously passed.

President McQueen, who was present and addressed the meeting, expressed his warmest appreciation of the loyalty and good sportsmanship exhibited by the milk producers of Lake county.

ELECTION, FUN AND SPEECHES FEATURE
AT FARM MEETING

The election of officials of the Lake County Farm Bureau and County Farm Supply Company is occupying the attention of those assembled at Grayslake today. The boards of directors are also being elected.

A combination of entertaining and educational features has been arranged for the day's program. The two men's unit will receive impetus for further organization by the speech of John Black, organizer for the Lake County Home Bureau. An address will be given by R. L. Merchant, manager of the Illinois Farm Supply Company.

1930 Officers.

Retiring officers of the farm bureau are: Eb Harris, president; Wilbur Sawyer, vice president; Earl Kane, secretary; L. A. Huebsch, treasurer.

Officers of the Farm Supply Company are: Willard Darrell, president; William Pink, vice president; D. H. Minto, secretary; Eb Harris, treasurer.

Mrs. Emil Stolskal returned this week after spending several days visiting her parents in Albany, Ind.

Mrs. George Bacon is in Ringwood, Ill., caring for her mother, Mrs. William Dodge, who is ill.

Harold Rudolph, of Channel Lake, has recently accepted a position as sheet metal worker at a North Side manufacturing plant in Chicago. He spent the week-end at his home.

Miss Julia Stricker spent the week-end at her home in Madison and attended the Michigan-Wisconsin hockey games.

PROSPERITY DOLLAR IS DETECTED LOAFING

The prosperity dollar, the little harbinger of good times, which is supposed to be working overtime in a supreme effort to blot out depression, has been caught slacking, thus revealing in what a terrible financial state the country as a whole, and Antioch in particular, wallows. For the buck has paid but one bill in the last one-fifty-second of a year, and that when Mr. Tackles transported it to the shop of his neighbor, Powles' Meat Market.

Fortunately, this lone greenback is not the only one which brings a sparkle into the eyes of beholders, and there are some others who know what working overtime without pay really means.

All Games

An indoor baseball league will be organized by the Moose Lodge at a meeting to be held at the high school next Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock. Moose members invite all the Antioch business men to attend the meeting and join the team. The Moose Lodge, because of the numerous applications received for membership from residents of many of the neighboring towns, is planning to hold another initiation soon.

An engagement between the strong Silver Lake basketball team and the Moose team at the high school last night ended in a 40-17 victory for Silver Lake.

Genoa City will bring two teams to Antioch tomorrow night, one to play the Moose team, the other to take on the town team. Another game will also be staged between the town team and the Moose.

Wilmot Wins.

Their usually successful passing attack falling them, the Antioch town team was defeated by the Wilmot team Monday evening, 45-35. The game was played after the high school game with Libertyville. At first it appeared that the local team would win by a small margin, but due to lack of practice during the past week, the boys were out of form, and Wilmot was able to stage a rally sufficient to conquer by 10 points. They will take on the Libertyville town team here next Monday.

The St. Peter's team, after a hard game, lost to the Gurnee town team at Gurnee Friday evening, by the score of 26-14.

Crime in its latest dress, the great air mail lines, will be seen at the Crystal theatre next Tuesday night when J. B. Rotz and company present "The Airmail Robbery."

"The play is a sensation," Mr. Rotz says, "and plenty of good comedy given the production a kick that has made the story of the sky-jacker popular throughout the circuit."

As an extra added feature of next Tuesday night's performance, "J. B." announced that all high school students will be admitted at one-half price—25 cents.

ASSEMBLYMEN WILL CONSIDER RE-MAPPING
AND DRY REPEAL BILLSRe-Districting of State and Liquor Bills in Spotlight at Springfield

Facing the problem of disposing of 186 bills and eight resolutions, the Illinois general assembly re-convened at Springfield Tuesday, with the bill for the repeal of the search and seizure act and Senator Thomas J. Courtney's resolution for re-apportioning Illinois legislative districts holding the spotlight of interest as the most important measures before the law-makers.

Repeal Bill Special Order.

The liquor bill was made a special order of business in the lower branch of the general assembly and will come up for vote next Wednesday. Arguments for and against the measure will be before the whole house.

Senator Courtney has announced that he intends to make no attempt to seek a vote this week on his resolution instructing the legislative reference bureau to prepare a map by March 1st, dividing Illinois into fifty-one new districts based on the 1930 federal census, as the constitution provides. Too many senators on whom the minority leader depends for votes are absent this week. Besides the legislature adjourns today until next Tuesday.

Senator Courtney declared today he expected his resolution would be adopted.

If that happens the legislative reference bureau's reapportionment plan should be sent to the senate committee on apportionment.

Carroll Introduces Bill.

First of the eighth district legislators to introduce a bill at this session was Representative William M. Carroll, Woodstock, who seeks approval of an appropriation for Fox River navigation improvements. The measure is designated as House Bill 73.

Efficiency Causes
Depression, Editor
Tells Men's ClubSays Results of World War
And High Tariff Also Responsible

Reasons for the present depression were discussed by John Thompson, for fifteen years editor-in-chief of the Iowa Homestead, a weekly farm journal, and now editor-in-chief of the Wisconsin Agriculturalist, in an address before a group of forty men at the meeting of the Men's Club of the Methodist church last Thursday evening. "The economic and industrial depression is not confined to the United States alone," he said. "Other countries of the world are equally hard hit."

Among the reasons which he gave for the depression, were the after-effects of the World War. Also he considered the high tariff rates more of a hindrance than a help to world markets. "The efficiency with which we do things with modern machinery and scientific knowledge," he said, "has created production faster than we are able to consume what is produced. The farmer today with modern machinery can produce 40 per cent more in the same amount of time than he could twenty years ago. Consequently there is an over-production of farm products, as there is of manufactured products."

Following Mr. Thompson's address, a round-table discussion developed, for which the speaker remained half an hour, answering and discussing questions which were asked by members of the group.

C. L. Kutt was chairman of the program, which was preceded by a sumptuous chicken dinner served by the ladies of the church.

The next meeting of the Men's Club will be held Friday evening, February 1, with W. C. Petty as chairman of the program.

FARM LOAN ASS'N

Antioch farmers were elected to fill all the offices of the Lake County Farm Loan Association at the meeting held in Libertyville Tuesday. H. Minto, active farmer, living between Antioch and Millburn, was elected president; Gorm Anderson, vice president, and W. E. Drom, secretary-treasurer.

The secretary of the Federal Farm Land Bank of St. Louis, Mrs. S. M. Schner, was the chief speaker at the meeting.

Naber Building; Will Open Restaurant Here

A 3-year lease on the Barney Naber building, 895 Main street, signed by Hynek Klas, Berwyn restaurateur, was announced by the T. J. Stahl Realty Company this week. Possession is to be given February 1st, it was stated. Klas, who has had many years' experience in the restaurant business in the Chicago area, plans to open a first-class cafe in the near future. Mr. Klas and family are living at 341 Hardin street, former rectory of St. Peter's church.

The Naber building has been occupied jointly by J. C. James, realtor, and the Antioch Heating Co. for the past several months.

Clothing of clients amounting to about $1,000 and personal goods valued at $300 were totally destroyed Monday morning about 3 o'clock by fire which also ruined the building in which the Antioch Cleaners and Tailors conducted their business. The building, valued at about $700, was owned by L. B. Grice, and was covered by insurance. $2,500 insurance was carried also on the contents of the shop by John Trusch, manager of the Antioch Cleaners and Tailors.

The fire was discovered Monday morning by Mr. Trusch, as he was returning home from Chicago at 3 o'clock in the morning. A cloud of smoke greeted him as he opened the door, and flames immediately burst forth when the air reached the blaze, which was thought to have originated from an over-heated stove, as Harry Petask had re-filled the stove with a load of coal at 10 o'clock, according to Mr. Trusch's instructions. The fire department was notified, but the frame buildings and the contents burned too quickly to be saved, although a shed directly west escaped damage.

Mr. Trusch asks that all who had clothing in his shop at the time of the fire file their claims for loss at once, so that that matter can be settled with the insurance company.

"My future plans are still uncertain," Mr. Trusch said. "First I want to get these claims filed and straightened out, so I know where I stand."

Miller's Appointment
as Waterway Supervisor Gets ApprovalProminent Lake County Republican Selected for Important State Post

Approval of Governor Emmerson's appointment of Benj. H. Miller, as superintendent of Illinois waterways was given by the senate Thursday. Judge Miller, long a prominent Republican and well-known practicing attorney of Libertyville, will succeed Wm. P. Mulvihill of Chicago, who was appointed to the post by Governor Len Small.

The superintendent is in charge of and directs the development of waterways in the state. The office, which is now working in cooperation with the federal government in the development of the deep waterway from the Lakes to the Gulf, via the Illinois River, is regarded as a most important one and likewise one that will require capable management during the next few years. Judge Miller has pledged his cooperation with the federal government.

The big job is the erection of ten bridges between Joliet and Utica, which will cost, it is estimated, nearly $3,000,000. When plans of engineers are approved by the government, the work will proceed, according to Mr. Miller.

Other projects that will be under the direct supervision of Judge Miller pertain to flood relief in Southern Illinois districts. The principal work now being done there is along the Saline River where dredging and building levees will cost $150,000. Presenger & Son, Antioch contractors, are now at work on this project.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Lynch received word from their son, James P. Lynch, that he had sailed from Honolulu for San Francisco on the S. S. President Grant. He was to leave San Francisco on January 15th, for Brooklyn, N. Y., on the Army Transport Cambric, of which he is quartermaster.

HOUSE LIQUOR
VOTE IS SET
FOR JAN. 28Drys to Oppose Repeal of Search and Seizure Act

LYONS AGAINST 'RAILROADING'

Representative Thomas J. O'Grady's bill to repeal the search and seizure act and the state prohibition law will be called up in the house of representatives next Wednesday morning, January 28.

Speaker David E. Shanahan made the announcement Tuesday of the date fixed by agreement of both parties. The measure now is on second reading and the wet forces will seek to advance it to third reading, the voting stage. The dries, although in a minority in the house, will resist the move.

The advancing of this bill last week to second reading contrary to legislative rules was opposed by Representative Richard J. Lyons and many other friends of the bill, who have consistently voted against "railroading" important measures. He is expected on Wednesday, when the vote is taken, to carry out the expressed wishes of the people at the election on last November 4th.

Rep. Lyons Explains Stand.

Representative Lyons explains his stand in the matter in the following letter to the Antioch News: "An erroneous impression was created by my voting 'no' on the O'Grady bill to repeal the Illinois search and seizure law and I believe an explanation necessary. The bill was not up for a vote on passage. Many people will regard my vote as a wet or dry vote and I wish to relieve my constituents of any doubt of my position when this bill comes up for final passage. The vote taken Wednesday was merely a question of parliamentary procedure. I voted as I did during the last session on such questions.

"The question was whether the rule should be suspended and the bill placed on second reading without reference to committee. I voted to sustain the time-honored principle that every bill should go to committee unless a real emergency existed. This I have religiously adhered to on all bills.

"The repeal bill will soon come up for passage and I wish to make my position clear. The people of Lake county and the district voted on November 4 for repeal of this act. As our government is by the consent of the governed, I feel that their voice on November 4 should be my guide. This government, or any other, cannot long endure if the wishes of the majority are to be ignored. When the proper time comes to vote on this bill I will be guided by the wishes of the majority. I have ample faith in the intelligence and good judgment of my constituents. I do not feel that I can better judge their wishes than they themselves, and they have spoken. I will vote to repeal the search and seizure act."

His Home in Junction
City, Oregon

A heart attack proved fatal to Dr. G. R. Olcott at his home in Junction City, Ore., January 12. It was learned by friends here this week.

Dr. Olcott was a practicing dentist in Antioch for many years. The family home was at 933 Main street, now the Episcopal church parsonage. He left here about twelve years ago. He had discontinued the practice of dentistry and since living in Oregon had interested himself in poultry raising and fruit farming. Dr. Olcott was 78 years old. He is survived by his wife and daughter.

Mrs. William F. Ziegler departed Friday for Decatur, Ind., where she will be a guest in the home of her sister, Mrs. H. L. Merry, for the next two weeks.

The Misses Hilma Roeling, Virginia Haghelester, Isabelle Harwood, Alice Warner and Dorothy Brogan motored to Cary, Ill. Sunday, to witness the ski meet.

LYONS OPPOSES "RAILROADING" BILLS

Commending the stand of Representative Richard J. Lyons in opposing the practice of "railroading" measures through the legislature, friends of the young assemblyman have voiced approval of his vote against suspending the rules when the bill for the repeal of the search and seizure act came before the assembly last week.

Representative Lyons declares he will vote the will of the people of the eighth district as expressed at the election last November, but he also makes the assertion that he expects to stand for the measure being passed in the regular manner. Then, he declares, there will be no cause for criticism from the opposition. The wet-dry vote will come before the Illinois law-makers Jan. 28.

THE "PAINLESS" TAX GROWS PAINFUL

The gasoline tax has been considered a "painless" means of extracting revenue from the motorist.

There are signs on the horizon at present, however, which would indicate that the public is weary of being "painlessly" milked of its money. In the past eleven years the gas tax has totaled more than $2,000,000,000, and it is forecast that an equal or greater sum will be collected in the next four years.

The tax began with levies of one or two cents. But now the average levy is almost four cents and increases

Libertyville Downs Antioch By 8 Points

Seconds Win, 24-23; Teams to Play Palatine Fri. at Palatine

After a well-fought game, in which Antioch held their opponents during the last three quarters, Antioch was defeated by Libertyville Monday evening, 36-28. In the first quarter, the Libertyville boys piled up a 14-point lead, which the locals reduced but could not overcome before the final gun was shot.

At the half the score stood 21-11. Hughes, the sole scorer, making three baskets and a free throw. In the fourth quarter, Antioch claimed twelve points, with Fuchs retaining his usual basket-making skill. A beautiful long shot by Turk sank neatly through the net. Others scoring were Brogan, King, Smith and Kashaev.

Libertyville's high point man was the plus six foot Jamison, who scored whenever possible, particularly in the early part of the game. The seconds unexpectedly won their game from the Libertyville second string, 24-23, after a thrilling and intensely interesting game. In a preliminary tussle, the senior girls defeated the junior girls, 14-8.

The Antioch squad will engage with Palatine, whose team defeated them once this season, Friday night, at Palatine. The postponed game with Warren will be held either February 3rd or February 10th, depending upon the outcome of the tournament. In the event that both teams reach the tournament finals, the game will be held on the tenth.

Semester exams are being held today and tomorrow at the high school.

All high school students and grade school pupils from Antioch and neighboring country districts were given the opportunity to see "Tom Sawyer" yesterday at the Antioch Theatre at a nominal fee, when classes were dismissed a period earlier than usual to allow them to attend.

SAWDUST NEWS

Volume 1 January 22, 1931 Number 3

You can judge the extent and degree of a parent's authority by the age at which the kids learn to drive.

We know for a fact that there are many housewives in the Antioch rural districts who have postponed their hopes for better homes until expensive farm machinery was paid for. "Now, I'm going to have some modern things," remarked one of those ladies yesterday. We don't blame her one bit!

A prominent local educator says you'll find that the correspondence schools invariably leave their stamp.

If your furnace becomes clogged with soot, bring the fire up to a high temperature and then throw in a few handfuls of ordinary salt. Allow the fire to burn several minutes with all the drafts open. If necessary, repeat at intervals of 30-minutes.

Soot is caused very largely by a smoldering fire. Too much coal on the coals will cool the fire and sometimes put it out. You'll have a cleaner furnace and much more heat if you'll feed your fire gradually until it gets well under way.

We noticed a friend of ours the other day had quit wearing his usual blue serge suit. "The trousers were getting so shiny," he explained, "I was afraid if I tore them I'd have seven years' bad luck."

How many times, in the last year, have you needed a ladder? Stop and think it over. They're a pretty blamed good investment.

Unsheltered machinery rusts out. Unsheltered livestock does not produce the profits it should. Inconvenient farm buildings are time losers. In other words, you pay for needed buildings, whether you have them or not. Isn't it time you were enjoying these conveniences that you are paying for?

If you assume that sitting on a hot stove will be unpleasant—that's common sense. If you form no opinion until you've tried it 837 times—that's science.

You realize how much hard wear a floor gets every time you buy a new pair of shoes. That's why we recommend hardwood floors. They stand punishment.

One Antioch lady says she has a terrible time, between her husband and her furnace. Every time she watches one the other goes out.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Life" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ. Scientist, on Sunday, January 18.

The Golden Text was, "If thou wilt enter into life, keep the commandments" (Matthew 19:17).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "For they that are after the flesh but they that are after the Spirit the things of the Spirit. For to be carnally minded is death; but to be spiritually minded is life and peace" (Romans 8:5, 6).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "We apprehend Life in divine Science only as we live above corporeal sense and correct it. Our proportionate admission of the claims of good or of evil determines the harmony of our existence—our health, our longevity, and our Christianity" (p. 107).

TIMELY TOPICS BY ANTIOCH PEOPLE

MATHEMATICS

The sciences of mathematics are among the most ancient of our sciences. Some run back to the earliest stages of human history. As early as the time of Christ we find there were some who were deeply interested in the study of astronomy, studying and calculating the movements of the stars and heavenly bodies. The manipulation of figures is always an interesting study and always highly complicated in higher mathematics. In the handling of figures, no matter how complicated, in the final analysis there are only four operations. They are addition, subtraction, multiplication and division. When the child in the early grades of his elementary education has learned these four operations he has learned all there is to know in the handling of figures, so far as the operations are concerned. His further knowledge in this field lies in his ability to work the combinations of these operations to get the desired results.

If these four basic operations of arithmetic were applied to our daily lives, our achievements in life would doubtless be greater and life itself would be more worthwhile. There are many things we can add to, or take away from humanity that will work a great change. For example, man plus modern mechanical power has revolutionized our social and industrial world. We have added to our physical strength mechanical powers which have made possible vastly greater achievements. Man plus an airplane is fast conquering the barriers of distance and in spite of gravitation can fly through the air at terrific speed. Some one has said, "Man plus his present knowledge, has learned to fly like a bird and to swim like a fish, but has not learned how to live like a man." Some poet has said, "Men and boys are learning every trade except how to make men of themselves."

There are some in every generation, however, who are interested more in humanity than in material things. Man plus mechanical power equals what? Who can give an answer to this question? Man plus God equals what? Who can give an answer to this question? One of the New Testament writers has suggested some additions that hinge upon the improvement of character. He said, "Add to your faith virtue; and to your virtue add knowledge; and to your knowledge add temperance; and to temperance add patience; and add to patience godliness; and to godliness add brotherly-kindness; and to brotherly-kindness add charity or love." (Second Peter, 1:5-7)

Add patience, he suggests. Where is the individual who would not profit by adding more patience? It would help in his home life if nowhere else. Most of us need more patience with circumstances, with others, with ourselves, and with God. The twin virtue of patience is perseverance, or stick-to-it-iveness. Most people give up too easily and too quickly.

He further suggests to add knowledge. "Know the truth," said the master of men, and the truth shall make you free." One of the greatest contributions of Christianity to the world has been that of education. Wherever the church has gone schools have sprung up after it. It has always been closely allied with the development of mental capacities. The church has done more to lift the world out of the darkness of superstition and ignorance into the light of knowledge and liberty than has any other institution.

Add brotherly-kindness to our godliness. Can we possess godliness without brotherly-kindness? That was the case of the priest and the Levite in the Good Samaritan story. And that is one of the troubles with this world today. Too many who profess a love for God and have little regard for his fellowman. What would happen if every man treated the other fellow as he would treat his own brother? Brotherly-kindness, if put universally into practice, would revolutionize the world. Six of the ten commandments have a direct bearing upon our dealings with our fellowmen. And one of the "greatest commandments" states that we must love our neighbors as ourselves. The first is to love God, and the second, equally great and important, is to love your neighbor. Man, plus these things, is a Christian and the son of God. It is within the reach of every human being to add these virtues which will make his life richer and more worthwhile.

Historic Blarney Castle
Blarney castle was built about 1446 by Cormac McCarthy. It has walls which in places are as thick as 18 feet. The fame of the castle is bound up in the civil history of the country and the war of the Great Rebellion. The famous Blarney stone is near the top of the wall. Promises and flattering speeches delayed the surrender of the castle in medieval times and from this fact it is supposed that the tradition concerning the Blarney stone arose.

DRIVERS' LICENSE BILL TO COME BEFORE GENERAL ASSEMBLY

Motor Club Makes Recom- mendation to Illinois Legislature

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 22.—In the expectation that it will be introduced in the general assembly in the immediate future, the legislative department of the Chicago Motor Club has mailed printed copies of its drivers' license bill to all members of the Illinois legislature.

The foreword of the booklet, containing the bill stresses the point that licenses would be issued upon application without mental, physical or driving examination, except under certain circumstances.

"Unnecessary examinations as a prerequisite to a license are expensive, burdensome and unproductive of the result desired," the club declared in part in the foreword. "The elimination of compulsory examinations of all applicants will permit the issuance of licenses at nominal cost. We favor the issuance of a driver's license at minimum expense and inconvenience, but with adequate provision for revocation and suspension. For this reason our bill is frankly directed at the small minority of reckless and irresponsible drivers to whom are chargeable the toll of loss of life and injuries to persons and property."

The bill provides, briefly and generally, for the issuance of a license to drivers upon declaration that they are qualified in various ways to operate a car safely. The fee is estimated at 25 cents.

Revocation of a license would be for one year and would result from conviction for manslaughter arising from the operation of a motor vehicle, driving while intoxicated, fleeing from an accident, any crime punishable as a felony under the Motor Vehicle Act, driving a car while the license was suspended, or perjury committed in securing a license.

The bill also provides for a penalty comprising a fine not exceeding $500 to be imposed upon violators of any of the provisions of the drivers' license act, and in addition thereto, upon conviction of driving a motor vehicle while a license has been revoked or suspended, imprisonment in the county jail for not more than one year.

Suspension of a license would be for six months and would result when the holder is found to be incompetent to drive by reason of mental or physical infirmities or by reason of habitual recklessness or negligence.

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I—Renewing a childhood attachment, Ernestine Briceland, of a wealthy Chicago family, is tremendously attracted by Will Todd, a newspaper artist, son of a not particularly well-to-do carpenter. Her sister, Lillian, more of the conventional type, and aware of the attitude their father would take toward his daughter's marriage, urges Ernestine to marry a young man, Loring Hamilton, an impetuous, but the latter, capable of a passionate attachment, and realizing that in Will Todd she has found her affinity, refuses.

CHAPTER II—The love-making progresses swiftly, and finally, largely because of Ernestine's urging, they make a "runaway" marriage. Ernestine is infuriated but helpless, Ernestine being the girl, and after a stormy harrowing home, Loring Hamilton, a wealthy young lawyer, long Lillian's suitor, wins her home, and Lillian is spent at Will's home, and next day they begin their married life in a single room in a humble neighborhood. Ernestine, realizing the difference her marriage has made in her social sphere, but, secure in her love, faces the future bravely.

CHAPTER III—John Poole, Will's friend, successful though disliking Ernestine at a birthday party for Ernestine at Ruby Pastano's, a hemline resort on the fringe of the underworld, and gangster, notorious as a bootlegger and gambler, irritates Ernestine by his criticism of Will for bringing his young wife to such a place. Appealing to Will to take home, he delegates the task to a friend, Tommy Tucker, who has drunk much to his home. Ernestine is hurt by the appearance of Loring and Lillian, who had heard of her whereabouts and with whom she leaves the party.

CHAPTER IV—Reproaching him for leaving her unprotected in his car, which awakens Ernestine to the realities of her new life. She is conscious of approaching motherhood, and in an indication of the event opens a small savings account.

CHAPTER V—Will's father dies almost immediately after the birth of Ernestine's baby. The couple live in the Todd house, Loring announces his intention of "going into" politics, in association with his friend, with whom he has formed a partnership, and is eager for wealth. Changes in Will's office fall to Ernestine's advancement, and Ernestine is again looking forward to motherhood.

CHAPTER VI—Pastano acquires a home at Langleys lake, aristocratic resort, where the Bricelands have a cottage. Loring and Will quarrel bitterly, apparently over John Poole, and the sisters, feel separated to both their husbands. Ernestine goes to visit the Pastano's at Langleys lake. Before they leave, Will, feeling they are drifting apart, seeks to reach an understanding with Ernestine, without telling her of his aspirations to become a painter, but has little success.

CHAPTER VII—Loring pleads with Ernestine to leave Will and return to his parents. She hesitates, but an incident in the morning, realizing what the action would mean to him, she knows she cannot do it, and returns the rift in the late closed. With a new idea for a comic strip, it is an immediate success. Money flows in Ernestine's third child is born.

Next morning Will ate his breakfast and went out, his manner more normal than it had been of late. He kissed her cheek, and said to her:

"Was I rough last night, kitten? You're pale. Sorry, I left the money in your desk drawer. Use it. It's all for you and the children, anyhow."

"Thanks, Will," she said indifferently, for now she did not care about the money at all. "Do you know anything about Loring and Lillian? We've not seen them for days. I've been spring housecleaning, and haven't even phoned her. I tried to get her just now, and no one answered."

"I think Loring and Pastano are having some trouble," said Will. "I saw Ruby a day or two ago, and he was black in the face about something Loring tried to put over on him. He'll be hard, if he gets turned against your brother-in-law. I'll call Loring at his office today, and see if I can find out what's up. Well, so long, I'm late."

Ernestine was busy with her family and household all morning, but with a sense of troubled foreboding in her heart. She went to the phone two or three times, but could not get Lillian's house nor Loring's office.

"Funny thing Lillian's maid isn't at home," she thought, but no one answered the prolonged ring at the other house. Ernestine went on about her work, and at eleven o'clock, Molly called her to the phone.

"Hello," said Ernestine.

It was a woman's voice, crisp, young and businesslike.

"Mrs. Will Todd?"

"Yes."

"This is the Van Hueten Clark Street Savings bank calling. Could you come down here right away?"

"Why—I don't know. Why should I?"

"I'm afraid I can't tell you that. You're to come here for a private conference. I believe it's important."

"Why, yes," said Ernestine. "I can come. But I don't understand. There's not a run on the bank, is there? I've all my savings."

"Oh, no," said the cheerful voice. "Nothing like that, I assure you. Can you be here about ten minutes of twelve? The doorman will take you to the private office."

"Well," said Ernestine, "it all seems very mysterious, but I'll come. I'll be there at ten to twelve."

"Thank you, Mrs. Todd. And, please, I was to ask you to come by the Clark street car, and leave the car at Ontario street, instead of coming in your own car."

The crisp voice was disconnected. Ernestine put the receiver in place wonderingly. Well, there was no answer to her questions until she was there.

She left the street car at Ontario street and walked south. The doorman at the bank greeted her with a stiff nod, left his place and walked back through the big downstairs room. Ernestine followed him. He paused at the foot of the wide stairs that led to the balcony.

"The last door, on the left side of the balcony," he said to her in a low voice, and Ernestine went up the stairs, half frightened with this secrecy, walked forward again, toward the street, passed indifferent employees and opened an unmarked door, entered a private office, and closed the door behind her.

Ruby Pastano was standing by the green-curtained windows, looking down into the street through a tiny slit he held open with his finger. He turned to her.

"Ernestine!"

"Mr. Pastano!" She did not know whether she was relieved or more frightened. At least, here was some one familiar.

"Will you shake hands with me?"

He came to her, big, sober, non-committal and offered her his hand. Ernestine laid her hand in his big thick palm and noticed, as she did so, how extraordinarily long his fingers were, as he took her hand in both of his.

"I've been wondering, all the way over here, who it was that had sent for me," she said nervously. "I did not expect to see you—I don't know what I expected. I had a dreadful dream last night, and I've been frightened and nervous all day."

"Sit down, won't you?" the voice, silky, soft, as always, had in it a note of gentleness that went to Ernestine's heart, in spite of her formed and set prejudices against Ruby Pastano.

He drew up for her a chair upholstered in red plush, and she sat down, upright, ready for fight, on the edge of it. He seated himself before her on the empty desk.

"I didn't want you to come to my office, and I didn't want to go to your home, but I felt that I had to see you. Ernestine," he said gently, "do you believe that I am Will's friend?"

Ernestine felt that the occasion was momentous. She felt herself thrust back from the ordinary conventional judgments of her class and generation to something more fundamental. She answered naturally, honestly:

"Yes," she said, "yes, I do."

"Good," he said. "I've not done many unselfish things in my life, although I've done plenty that were dangerous—but for my own gain. But I'm going to do something for you now. I'm going to give you a chance to do something for somebody else. All last night I couldn't sleep, knowing that the plans that are coming forward today would hurt you. I know that I must work some change if it were possible. I wanted to take into account the existence of little Ernestine, knowing that I must at least give her her chance."

"What do you mean, Ruby?" she asked, her thoughts turning to Will. How could he be involved with this man? He had never had any contact with Pastano except the free contact of friendship. He had never had a favor from him.

"No," he said, reading her thought, "not Will—but Loring—your sister's husband, Loring Hamilton. Did you know that he is ruined?"

"Loring—ruined?"

"He will tell you, if he is fool enough to talk, that I have ruined him. I tell you that he ruined himself. He's in debt, he's in trouble, and he's under the shadow of an indictment—for bribing witnesses, in federal court—serious business, Ernestine."

"You mean—the grand jury? But how did this happen? Tell me, please."

"I cannot tell you everything. It's a long story, and involved, and, besides, it is unwise and unnecessary. I can give you a few facts. A week ago today your brother-in-law was secure. His security was dependent on his obedience. He had placed himself deliberately in a position where he had to do as he was told, in return for all that he had—and wanted. A week ago he decided to take a step that had been in his mind for some time. I knew that it was there. I was expecting it. Loring decided that he would break faith with me, cash in on his knowledge and cut the ties. He was thirsting for the water that he carried, but could not drink."

He paused, and the red of old anger burned in his cheeks.

"I held notes on him as security for business that he transacted through his office—properties I could not afford to have in my name. He thought I would not dare to sell his notes, nor use going into the ugly details. He woke up too late to find out that his transactions were with me—the company he was dealing with was mine—he sold my property to me. It was I who bought from him what he had no right to sell. I stopped payment on the checks he held, I had his notes, and he was holding—the bag."

"But how could you? That's not right. You couldn't do that."

"Why not?" asked Pastano. "I was cleverer than he. What could he do? What could he say? I called in his notes. Either he had to pay me, or I would sell them to his bank for discount. He put in his stone stock—sound property—and recovered his notes. Then he found all his debts due on the same day. He lost seventeen accounts in one afternoon—business taken right out of his office. He sold his car and yesterday he mortgaged his house. And today—unless it's stopped—he's going to be indicted."

Ernestine got to her feet.

"But, Ruby—how can you do this to Loring? He does know things about you—"

"Very little," answered Pastano evenly. "Fragments—nothing whole. Part of this deal—part of that. His own activities will shine much worse in court than his connections with me. Do you think I am fool enough to put myself in jeopardy with a man like Loring?"

Ernestine made a little moan, and he began to speak quickly, vehemently, with a strange sternness and justice in his face.

"He came to me—he sought the connection—he was eager for any work. He offered to do things for me that I wouldn't let him do. He was well paid, and he didn't play the game. His fees were big—business was thrown to him from a dozen directions inaccessible to him five years ago. He sat where he wanted to sit—in the lap of city politics, and he grew weary of his mistress. He wished to exploit her—desert her. So he schemed and planned. But you cannot get into the whirlpool and then out again—"

Ernestine, looking at him, felt the sucking breath of the vortex. "But what have I to do with this?" she asked. "What can I do for Loring? You haven't told me this without some purpose."

"First let me show you why I can do nothing for him myself—it is easier to start a landslide than to stop it. It was my intention—no, my determination—to ruin him, to have him disgraced, disgraced, sent to the penitentiary, if I could. It seemed necessary. Here, all about me, are these young men—lieutenants—gangsters, if you like the newspaper word better. They are my army. We must have obedience. Loyalty and obedience, first, because they have confidence in me, that I am wise, that I will take care of them while they stay with me, that I am competent to meet all situations. But if a man is disloyal, all the rest must see what becomes of him. Loyalty, first, because of confidence; second, because of fear. When admiration falls, fear remains."

"But you are not going to ruin Loring now?" she said eagerly. "You have changed your mind—you have some plan?"

"No," he said slowly, "no, not I. I have no plan to save Loring Hamilton. I have no desire to save him. I would not lift my little finger for Loring Hamilton. It is inevitable that he should fall, should be punished. Even if I wanted to do something for him now, I could not. His treachery is known to others as well as to myself. Money is needed. If I should withdraw money from my own private sources, or if I should withdraw money from funds that are available for gifts, when it is necessary, it would be instantly known. No—in the first place, I don't want to help Loring. If he were my own brother, I would feel that he must follow his course alone. Nor could I help him, even if I liked, but—he looked at her intently so that for a moment it seemed that she was lost, hypnotized by his great dark eyes—"You can help him, if you like, Ernestine."

"Tell me," she whispered. "What can I do?"

He put his hand in his pocket and took out his big silver watch. Laying the flat of his palm upon it, he traced it, unscrewing the back of the watch and took from between the outer and inner cases a small piece of paper, folded once across. He sat, his dismembered watch in one hand, and the piece of paper in the other, and said to her:

"I know that you have your own standards of honor—I have exposed myself, in this talk, knowing your code. But now, I must ask you if you are capable of secrecy. No one but I will know of this. He must know."

"I promise," she said at once.

He put the folded paper in her hand, and kept his finger upon it so that it remained closed.

"There is a name here. This afternoon, within an hour after this bank is closed—before four o'clock, to be exact, twenty thousand dollars, in cash, must be placed in the hands of this person, and the indictment against Loring will be dropped."

Ernestine was very pale. "A bribe?" she said, her throat dry. "But that's—wrong."

He was very gentle.

"Wrong, yes—no doubt. But we are at a place now—where it is the lesser evil, which must be chosen—not right or wrong. A bribe—ugly word. Yes, there is a regular scale of prices for indictments. This money must be spread. It will take twenty thousand dollars to do it. You have the money. I take a great risk upon myself—this talk, this name, this opportunity, but I wished you to have it."

He beamed upon her now—pleased as a child who has been good and waits for praise. Ernestine was very agitated.

"How do you know I have this money?"

"I am a director in this bank—you have it here."

"But that money is for Will. I've been saving it for nearly two years. I can't give that money for Loring. It's Will's."

"I'll not pay for Loring," said Pastano sternly, and he shrugged, his face altered, hard. "Why should I? You can—if you won't, he's sunk—that's all."

"No, no," cried Ernestine, "not that—not Will's money. I won't do it. Ruby, I can't. Loring will have to go down in his own wreckage. Why should I pay a bribe for him? Why should I rob Will of his very chance, for Loring? This isn't just money—this is Will's future—his peace, his happiness—this is my marriage—this money."

He was silent. He stared at her. She could feel in him disappointment. He was disappointed in her! He, monster that he was, dared to judge her!

That old saw, that carrots will make one's cheeks red and eyes bright, like many others, has a grain of truth in it. If vegetables are eaten consistently, and variety added by making use of as many kinds as possible (not favoring the cheerful carrot to the exclusion of all others), rosy cheeks and bright eyes will become apparent.

Many children dislike vegetables, and must "learn to like them." To encourage your boys, tell them that the importance of vegetables in the diet of football players is particularly emphasized by Notre Dame stars.

We'll run a mutual benefit exchange through the columns of the News. Perhaps your mother knows some appetizing German method of preparing vegetables, or some one else may be an expert in Norwegian vegetable cookery. Remember that date—February 5th—when we will conduct a Vegetable Page, with a recipe from every one who sends in. If too many are sent in for one week, it will be continued the next. There is only one rule: All contributions must be in the News office by Monday, February 2. Address Woman's Page Editor, Antioch News, Antioch, Ill.

Just why are vegetables so necessary? Because, to keep healthy, abundant supplies of calcium, phosphorus, iron, iodine and vitamins A, B, C, D and E are essential. All of these will be found in a generous variety of vegetables, supplemented by fruits, milk, cheese and eggs.

Bulk to the digestive tract is supplied by vegetables, which also neutralize harmful body acids.

Cooking Methods Changed. Most Antioch housewives are fully aware of the need of vegetables, as evidenced by the "boiled" dinners served to their families periodically. However, there are a few erring ladies who still believe in long boiling.

Cooking makes some vegetables more digestible, but most of them are better raw, as in salads. In cooking vegetables, the least possible water should be used, and they should be cooked only long enough to make the woody fibre tender. Much water discharges out the mineral salts, and long cooking makes them strong flavored, turns them dark, and destroys their vitamins. Baking or steaming are the best methods of cooking vegetables.

Summer vegetables should be cooked on the same day they are gathered. Look them over and wash well, cutting off all decayed parts. Keep water boiling until done. When cooking green vegetables add salt last few minutes of cooking.

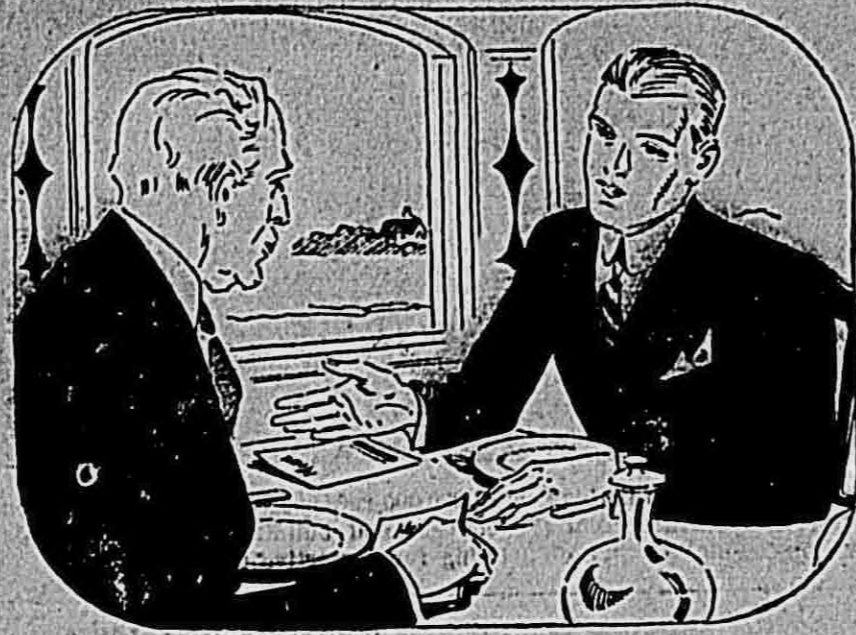

Potatoes—Boil 25 to 40 minutes.
Turnips—Boil from 50 to 60 minutes.
Beets—Boil from 1 to 2 hours before peeling.
Paranips—Boil 30 to 50 minutes.
Spinach—Boil 20 to 30 minutes.
Onions—Boil in 2 or 3 waters, 45 to 60 minutes.
String Beans—Boil 1 to 1 1/2 hours.
Shall Beans—Boil 30 to 60 minutes.
Green Corn—Steam 10 to 15 minutes, or boil 5 to 6 minutes.
Green Peas—Boil in as little water as possible 30 to 45 minutes.
Asparagus—Boil 20 to 30 minutes.
Winter Squash—Boil 20 to 40 minutes in small quantity of water.
Cabbage—Boil 45 minutes to 2 hours.

Variety Adds Flavor. Among the "many" dishes which might be served, in season, and some of them out of season, are: Creamed asparagus, asparagus on toast, baked or pickled beets, peas, green beans, boiled or creamed cauliflower, eggplant, plant, creamed cauliflower, plain or creamed, baked tomatoes, boiled sweet potatoes, baked tomatoes, boiled or creamed cabbage, cold plant, water-kent, peas in milk, or creamed peas, potatoes cooked every way, lima beans, or baked beans, paranips, corn, brussels sprouts, etc.

Spinach Pick over carefully and wash thoroughly in several waters until every bit of sand is removed. Put into large kettle and add very little boiling water, about 1/4 inch. Young spinach does not need any water. Boil until tender or about 25 minutes. Drain thoroughly, chop fine and drain again. Season with salt and pepper, and garnish with slices of hard-boiled eggs.

Jellied Vegetables Boil one envelope gelatin in 1/4 cup cold water 10 minutes. Add 1/4

Better Breakfasts

HOW often you have heard a man in a dining car or restaurant tell at length exactly what he has for breakfast every day in the year. He goes over it with great gusto, and solemnly assures you that it never varies. That's all right if it satisfies him and doesn't interfere with his health, but with the change in the weather these cool days we want something with substance to it, something cheering and filling and different from our regular routine.

Here's a suggested menu that has at least one dish that can't be classed as an "old reliable," and has the merit of including plenty of fruit.

FIFTH TOURNAMENT CHAMPIONSHIP AGAIN SOUGHT BY ANTIOCH

Strive to Keep Title Held Four Years; Bensenville First Opponent

Will Antioch go sailing through the fifth annual Northwest basket ball tournament to be held at Libertyville on January 29, 30 and 31, this year, for its fifth championship? That is what many fans are wondering, a week before the tournament opens. According to figures and standings of the teams, it doesn't appear that the loophole is large enough, but Antioch, by some means, miraculous and incomprehensible to the other teams, has upset dope before. Regardless of the season's race, they have hitherto been capable of priming for the tournament.

Bensenville, the second place winner a year ago, is the team which Antioch will play first this year on Friday evening. Palatine, Arlington Heights and Wauconda are, at present, tied for first place with four wins and one loss each. Warren follows with three victories and one loss. Libertyville and Loydson pair with three wins and two defeats. Antioch has been defeated three times, winning two games. Bensenville has one game out of five to their credit, while Elia and Barrington trail with five defeats. Tournament drawings were announced last week.

Appropriate trophies have been purchased, such that the first four winners will receive a trophy of some kind.

The entire conference is looking forward to the tournament with great anticipation and anxiety. It has grown to be quite an event in the conference and unquestionably the seasons will bring forth more friendly but high pitched rivalry than does the district tournament.

IS CHARGED WITH TAKING OUT WIS. RESIDENT LICENSE

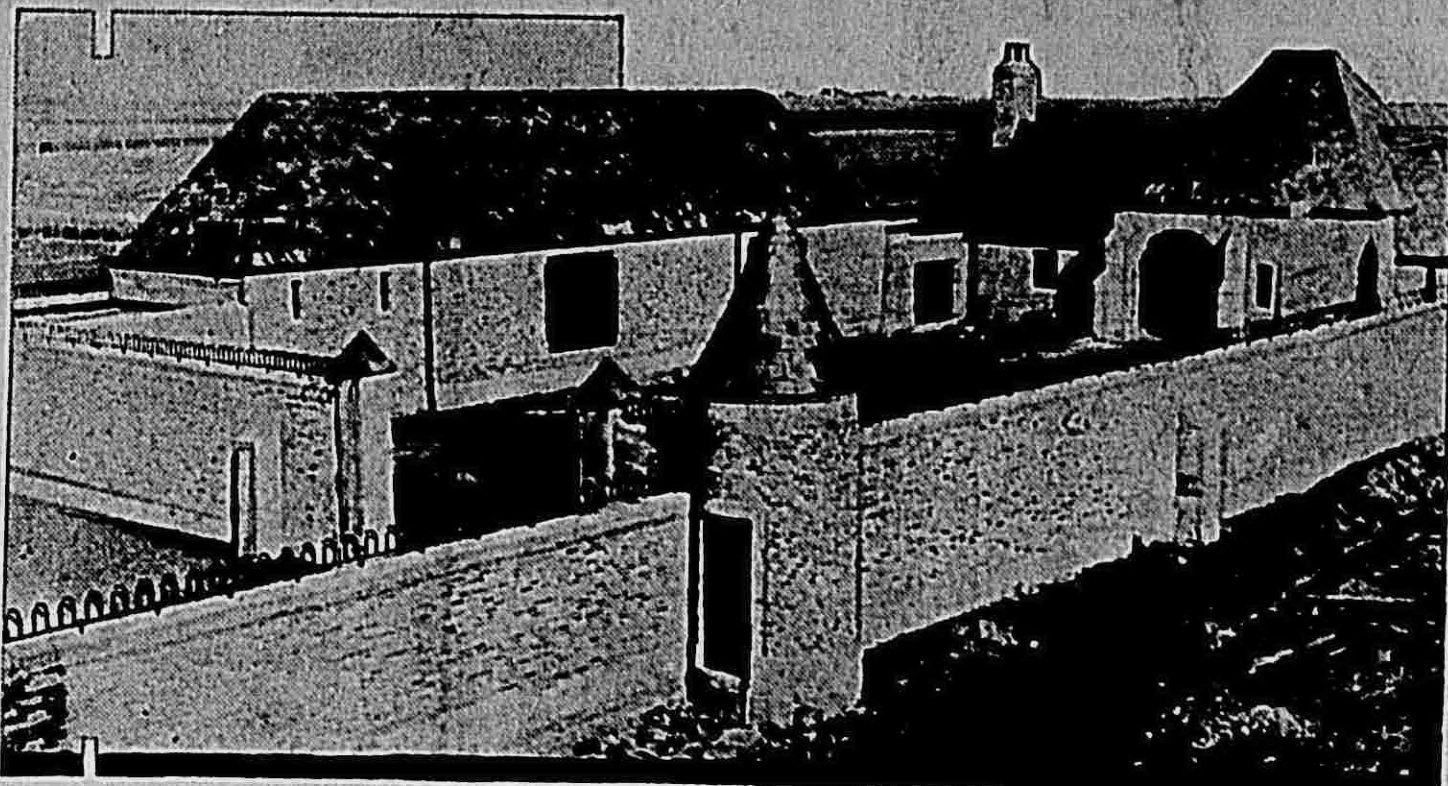

A charge of signing an affidavit stating that he was a resident of Wisconsin, so that he might take advantage of the $1 hunting license fee, was brought against Earl Sorensen, of Channahon, by Kenosha county officials last week. Sorensen, the first from Lake county to be summoned, gave bond for $700 and will plead not guilty.

The Wisconsin rate for non-resident hunters is $25, and the rate for shooting deer is $50, while to Wisconsin dwellers it is only 50 cents.

Others from border counties will no doubt be receiving summonses soon, as a check-up is now being made.

Let's do a little figuring

Maybe you can have that Frigidaire now

CHANCES are you've been postponing getting your Frigidaire until your ship comes in. Well, now, let's get out a pencil and do a little figuring. Probably it's not going to strain your budget if you order it today.

Suppose yours is an average-size family and you will need an average-size Frigidaire—the popular six-cubic foot model. You can buy it the "Little by Little" way for only $10 down and spread the balance over two years with only a nominal carrying charge.

When you figure just what Frigidaire gives in service . . . healthful year-round refrigeration . . . plenty of ice cubes at all times . . . a freezing compartment for salads and desserts . . . a compartment for reviving wilted vegetables . . . ample storage space for keeping foods and left-overs fresh and tasty . . . it's easy to agree with the people who rank electric refrigeration as the greatest convenience available to the home, next to electric light.

Step into your Public Service Store or phone for a man to call at your home. We'd like to tell you all about buying Frigidaire the "Little by Little" way.

SINGOOT OF SUMATRA

Kangy and I were ashore on th' Island of Sumatra, seein' th' sights and havin' a good time. We were walkin' along one of th' native streets when a Malay hove alongside with a monkey on his shoulder.

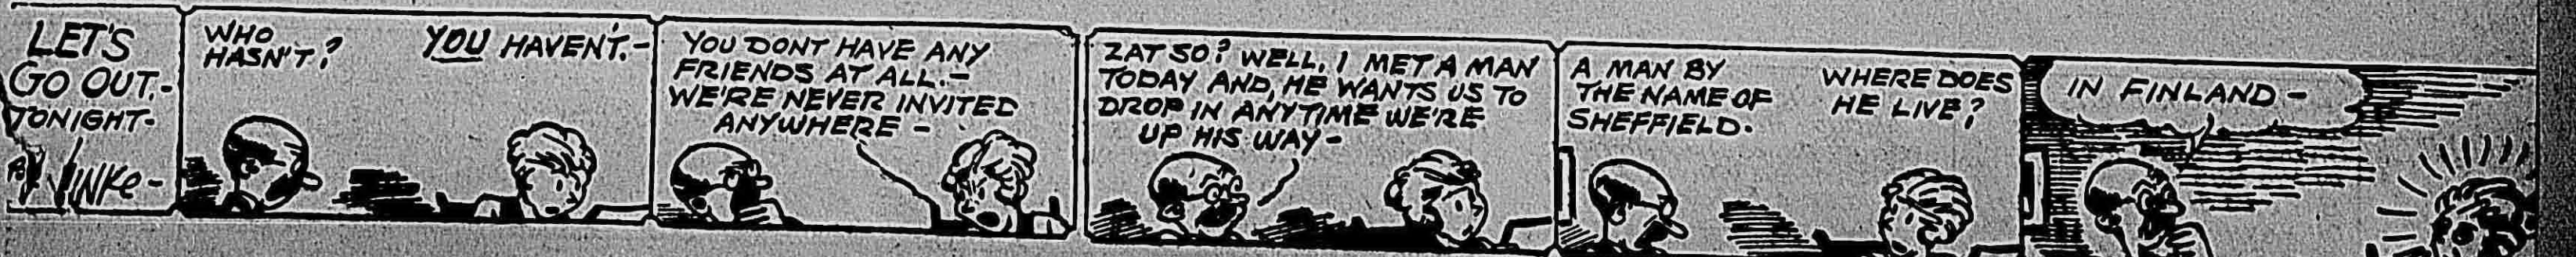

Th' native began jabberin' in pidgin English, tellin' me how smart th' monkey was. Then he whispered somethin' in th' monkey's ear, and dash my topknots if that little fellow didn't commence to dance and sing in monkey language. Kangy wiggled his whiskers and grinned.

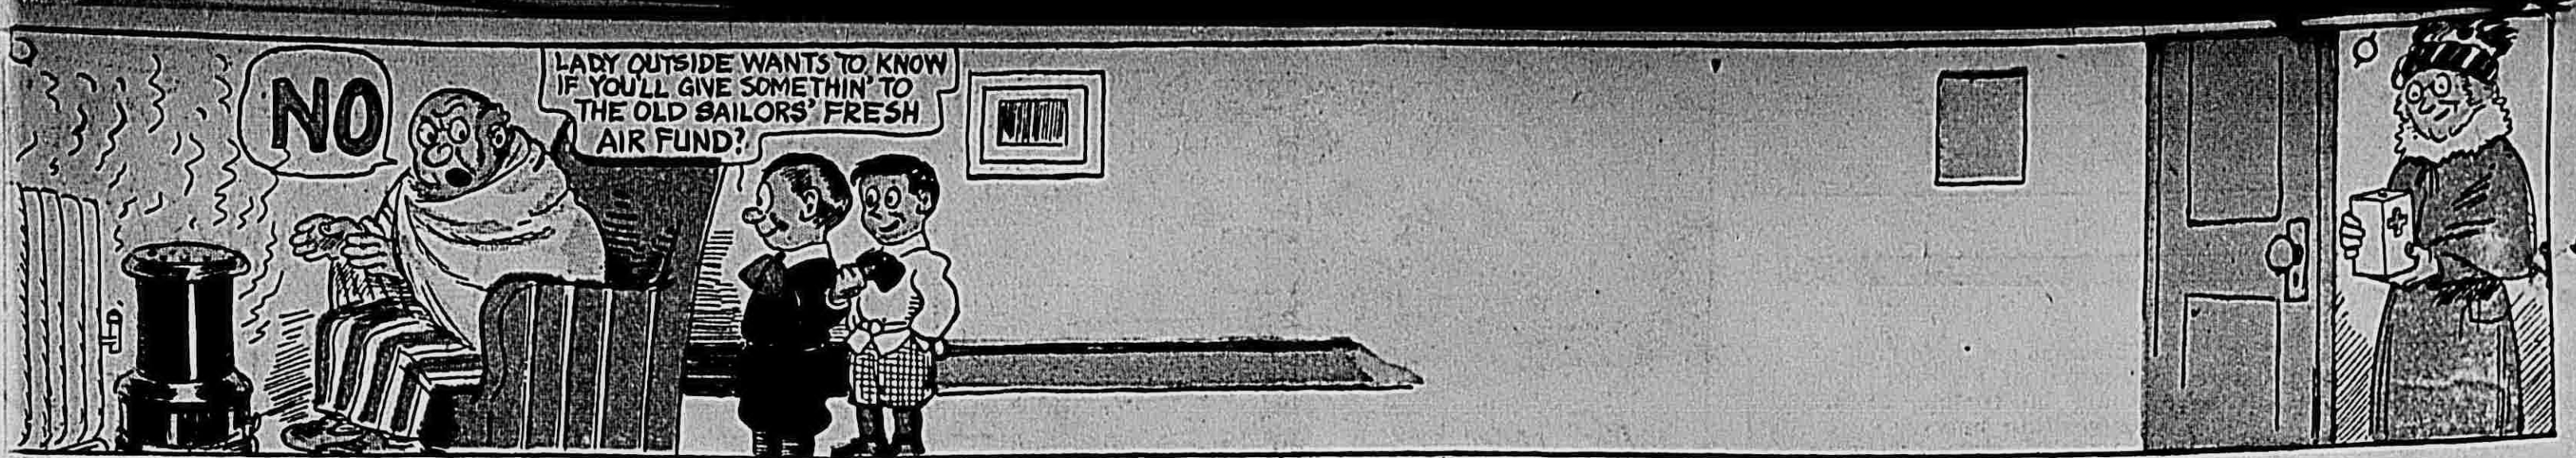

Well s'r, to make a long story short, I bought th' monkey. Just after we'd gotten under way again I stopped to buy some fruit. All at once a rumpus started back of me. I looked around and there was that dabusted monkey smashin' a basket of eggs on a high-toned Chinaman's head. I knew that as soon as th'

Chinaman got th' scrambled eggs out of his eyes there would be trouble, so we skipped in a hurry.

Soon's I aggered we were safe I gave that a monkey a good dressin' down in pidgin English. Near us a fat white man was leanin' back on a cane, buyin' a vase from a native. I turned to see if th' Chinaman was after us. Right then th' monkey got busy, slipped up behind th' fat man, wrapped his tail around th' cane and yanked it away. Down went th' fat man, on top of some of th' vases that were on th' ground. Wow, what a crash!

Later, from our perch in a palm-tree where we had hidden, Kangy and I watched th' monkey streakin' down th' road with th' fat man, a lot of natives, and th' Chinaman, too, after him. In my next yarn I'll tell you some more about th' singin' monkey.
